Programme overview

Prepare a fictional warden role map, plan-verification record, inclusive evacuation questions, accountability report, responder handover and tabletop review. Learn the limits of the warden role without unsafe searching or rescue practice. Eight self-paced written lessons in English, worked scenarios, safe desktop exercises, 55 explained questions including a final knowledge assessment, and a portfolio with model responses. Online awareness and theory only. No practical firefighting, live extinguisher drills, rescue exercises, electrical work, supervised workplace assessment or accredited qualification is included. No statutory safety-officer qualification, fire-service approval, NEBOSH/IOSH/OSHA accreditation or practical competence certification. No live classes, recorded lectures or individual human marking. Hazardous work requires separate competent training and authorisation. These eight original readings focus on warden planning and accountability. General fire and emergency-awareness themes recur in the existing Fire Safety course; this is a separate optional course, not a required add-on.

Who this is for

- 1 For adults aged 18+ who can read English and want introductory awareness or planning education.
- 2 Every exercise is a fictional desktop task. Do not start fires, discharge equipment, enter hazards, carry casualties, open panels or practise emergency interventions from these notes.
- 3 Online awareness and theory only. No practical firefighting, live extinguisher drills, rescue exercises, electrical work, supervised workplace assessment or accredited qualification is included. No statutory safety-officer qualification, fire-service approval, NEBOSH/IOSH/OSHA accreditation or practical competence certification. No live classes, recorded lectures or individual human marking. Hazardous work requires separate competent training and authorisation.
- 4 These eight original readings focus on warden planning and accountability. General fire and emergency-awareness themes recur in the existing Fire Safety course; this is a separate optional course, not a required add-on.
