Programme overview

Six original written lessons on numeric source identities, revision and table sequencing, NLM-style records, online material, software, source-status checking and an answered capstone. The course teaches scholarly referencing rather than clinical care. 6 self-paced written English lessons with original examples, practical exercises, explained answers and a self-assessed capstone. Optional automated Course Tutor assistance is available in the protected LMS. Independent ZELVU practical study. Software licences, official style manuals, live human teaching, individual marking, recorded lecture series, external accreditation and journal publication are not included. Follow the required institution or journal guide and verify source metadata; examples labelled fictional are for formatting practice only. These same six specialist lessons are included in the Academic Referencing Complete Course. Choose the focused Vancouver course or the complete path; buying both is not necessary for this material.

Who this is for

1. Basic academic reading and a word processor. Have the target journal instructions available when applying the training to a real manuscript.

2 Use a personal practice manuscript and permitted, non-confidential source records.

Published topics and learning focus

1 Understand Vancouver numbering and journal instructions

2 Renumber safely when text, tables and figures change

3 Build and verify NLM-style journal references

4 Reference books, online documents, datasets and software

5 Verify source support, preprints and publication status

6 Capstone: repair a numeric manuscript and its reference list
